The President's Place of Worship. The church which the president attends has always been a subject of interest to the public, as is evidenced by the fact that the pews which past presidents have occupied are being pointed out to the stranger from year to year, and so will pew 132 in Dr. Sunderland's church, generations hence, be gazed at with curiosity by the visitor to Washington. From the time the president reached Washington there was a rivalry among the various churches there as to which would secure him, but the latter, with his characteristic individuality, selected a church from which no invitation had been sent him.

THE NEW YORK AVENUE PRESBYTERIAS CHURCH.

The church which he chose is the most fashionable of the Presbyterian churches in Washington. It is in an unfashionable part of the town, and has no been over prosperou of late years. The pastor, the Rev. Byrot Sunderland, preached in this church before the war, President Pierce and his wife being regular attendants in those days. The greater portion of the congregation then were south-erners, who alienated themselves from it owing to the decided Union views which their pastor maintained. Dr. Sunderland has been chaplain of the senate for nine years, but since 1880 has retired from public notice. To the artist who was seeking information before making the sketches from which ou engravings are made, Dr. Sunderland wrote: 'Hitherto we have been a very retiring people, not at all known to fame nor sough after by the representatives of the press. This sudden notoriety is quite as inexplicable and somewhat annoying to a simple-minded, old-fashioned people, who neither expect not court conspicuity." If some churches are born prosperous and others in time achieve prosperity, Dr. Sunderland's church is an example of one that has prosperity thrown upon it. The very anticipation of the president wor shipping at this church packed it to suffocation the first Sunday after he was inaugu-

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND AT CHURCH. It was not until several Sundays after his inauguration that the president visited church for the first time. He listened with apparent ettention to the rather commonplace sermon of the pastor, the text being: "Thou shalt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed upon Thee, because he trusteth in Thee." The artist was not successful i securing a likeness of Miss Cleveland, who sat with her brother, owing to the embarrassment of the situation and to the studied en-deavor on her part to prevent the publication of her portrait in the newspaper press.

The Militia of All the States.

[Philadelphia Ledger.] The organized militia force of all the states aggregates 91,290 men, while the unorganized militia numbers 6,580,506 men. The state having the largest is New York, with 11,686 and 502,480 respectively, and Pennsylvania second, with 8,380 and 459,532. The other states having over 2,000 organ'z d and 200,000 unorganized are: Onio, 5,843 and 440,000; Illinois, 4,807 and 440,060; Indiana, 2,313 and 569,045; Missouri, 2,049 and 310,000, Massachusetts, 4,212 and 264,531; Michigan, 2,085 and 250,000; New Jersey, £,335 and 223,914; Texas, 223,000, and Iowa, 2,555 and 209,228.

That Would Be Sufficient.

[New York Journal.] "I wouldn't be so mean as to heap coals of fire on my enemy's head, dominie," said

Farmer Furrow to his pastor. "And, pray, what would you do, then?" "O, I'd just throw ashes over the fence onto his asparagus bed. That would make him mad enough.

inal cases is the ambition which impels ministration of justice, to create sympathy for a depraved and devilish criminal, to befog the popular judgment, and confuse the public sense of justice-to do these things successfully has until recently been deemed an infallible method of securing distinction at the bar. The sort of distinction schieved in this way, however, has ceased to be regarded as enviable. Probaacts in the West is T. C. Campbell, of Cincinvati, and, yet, we doubt if there is a jack leg lawyer in Kentucky that covets the reputation which that notorious personage "enjoys" as a practitioner at the bar. In proportion as a lawyer resorts to disreputable practices to carry professional ends, in the same proportion he sacrifices his own claims to popular confidence and esteem, and imparts to his own character a distintly criminal taint. No really great lawyer ever attempted or desired to corrupt the administration of the

"See here," said the managing editor, kindly but firmly, to the young man who and assume general charge of the entire paper; "you must be a little more careful in your grammar and spelling; You make too much trouble for the compositor and proof reader. You say in this article 'he had went' and 'we have never saw.' Then your spell 'separate with two ps and four es, and you say 'we have come to the conclution' and 'that we are horrafied at the bear ideea.' Now you must be careful, and"-"Aw, well, look here, Shorty," cried the new young man, "give a fellow a chance. You got to remember I've been in college for eight years and havn't had a chance to learn anything." The managing editor forgave him, and promoted him to the carrier department.

A reporter of the Pittsburg Times, while talking to a number of iron-workers, was told by a puddler of a man who has two trains of rolls and who makes without any trouble from $15 to $20 s day. A roller with a small guide mill train can earn from $8 to $10 a day. There are rollers in Pittaburg now earning from $36 to $50 a day. There is a steel roller in a South Side steel works taken from his work about 2 c'clock his colored servant.

A Massachusetts paper mill bas adopted a safety paper which will make it extremely difficulty for any one to tamper with bank notes or checks printed upon it. The coloring matter of the paper is so prepared that the application of any chemical to remove the ink permanently changes the color of the paper, and an ingenious device is added which betrays at once any attempt to make an erasure. Between the two the enterprising forger will be sure to come to grief. Beton Transcript.

Many person find speedy relief for neryous headsche by washing the head thoroughly in weak soda water. We have known cases almost wholly cured in ten minutes by this simple remedy. -Last Monday night Bailey Collins and wo of the young Thompsons, all of whom are section hands, came to town about night there was heard upon the stillness of the night an occasional yell, or a report from a "pop." One of these reports was heard in front of Marehal W. T. Saunders, who had retired for the night. Saunders being aroused by the report, came out with his shot gun in hand, and saw a man on the pavement in front of his door, and demanded of him to know who fired the shot and on going up to the man he proved to be Bailey Collins. Some words passed between Collins and Saunders when Saunders knocked Collins down with his gun and then ordered him to leave town immediateat the corner of Main and Elm streets, where they opened a promiscuous fire with their pistols. Saunders summoned two or three men and started in pursuit. When in speaking distance Saunders ordered the men to halt and surrender, but their reply returned by the Marshal and party. GRAPHIC SKETCH OF THE LEADER OF THE REVOLT.

Mistory of the Early Uprising and the Present Troubles in the Saskatchawan Country from a Writer in the Northwest.

[Special Correspondence.] St. Paul, Minn., April 11.-Louis Riel, th leader of the present revolt which is giving the Canadian authorities so much trouble is a native of Manitoba, having been born there 41 years ago, under the old Hudson Bay regime. He is of French ancestry, but has some Indian blood in his veins. He is well educated, bold and insinuating in his manners, and just the man to lead the half-breeds. When the Hudson Bay company sold the greater part of their lands to the Canadian government in 1869, Riel commanded the half-breed insurrection against the new authorities, and held Fort Garry, near Winnipeg, for 12 months. He established a provisional government, seized all the property at the fort, and he and his associates in the movement became possessed of hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property. A number of loyal civ-Rians attempted to resist Riel, but they were put down, and one Thomas Scott was shot. When Col. Wolseley, now Gen. Lord Wolseley, and the Canadian militia, to the number of about 1,000, appeared in front of Fort Garry, Riel fled and the provisional government was dissolved. At that time some concessions were made to the half-breeds of Manitoba, each of them getting 240 acres of land. This satisfied the half-breeds of that province. The present outbreak is owing to the fact that the half-breeds of the remaining por tions of the northwest were not similarly treated. What Riel now wants is to get fo the other half-breeds what the insurrection of 1869 got for the people of Fort Garry.

Riel's father before him was a rebel. He led an outbreak against the Hudson Bay company before that association sold its lands to the Canadian government. This little private insurrection enriched the elder Riel and made him one of the small great men of his locality. The spirit of revolt is, therefore, in the blood of Louis Riel. His father was ambitious to make his son a gentleman and to school him in all the ways the white man's culture. The youth a strong, bold, black eyed boy, with the mixed barbaric and French natures stirring in his lawless, restless soul. He was sent to a Canadian college. He learned easily the lessons set him, but the discipline of the good fathers who were his teachers made no im-pression on him. His untamed nature burst all restraints. He repelled the advances of his schoolmates and shrank from human companionship, like a wild creature of the woods. At length by some chance a fellow student of refined, studious disposition was thrown with Louis Riel somewhat. He at once gained a marvelous influence over the half-breed youth. Louis formed a strange and strong attachment to the gentle comrade of white blood. He began to change, to heed his tasks and the admonitions of his teachers. His manners grew milder, he began to be courteous and less reserved to those around him. The wild half-breed son of Riel the rebel gave promise of becoming a gentle-

In a week's time all was charged. The gentle white schoolmate fell ill one day. The ailment developed into smallpox, and he was removed to hospital. Young Riel passionately refused to remain at his lessons. He ran away from college and followed the schoolmate to his hospital cot-bed. He watched his friend with dog-like devotion, a devotion, alas! that was all in vain. The young man died of the plague.

From the day of his death Louis Riel was little seen in towns and cities. He fled to his woods, up in the great Manitoba country. All the wildness in him broke out again. From that time on he dwelt among halfbreeds and Indians, the boldest, strongest, cruelest barbarian of them all. When civilization next heard his name it was as the leader of the OUTBREAK OF 1869.

A word on that will serve to explain the present one. The Hudson Bay company had had fur-trading posts in the region in quest tion for a century prior to 1869. They had acquired large possessions. When they trans-ferred their lands and property to the that position he died suddenly. He was one Canadian government, the region was already settled by a numerous population of French and Scotch half-breeds. Without consulting them, the dominion sent survey ars and parcelled off their lands in blocks.

MAP SHOWING THE SASKATCHEWAN COUNTRY. The lands were wanted to be opened up for settlement by the white man, and the Indian must go. The settlers resolved not to submit. Louis Riel put himself at their head at Fort Garry. A barrier was erected, beaind which an array of grim and gleaming bayonets stood guard. The dominion sent troops to quell the insurrection. Their commander demanded the surrender of the fort. A "swellish" young Englishman of the governor's staff strode deliberately up to the barrier, put his glass to his eye, and gazed insolently at the determined faces behind, and drawled out:

"Remove that blawsted fence." A volley secured by Shiloh's Catarrh Remove muskery or a roar of laughter, either one, For sale by Penny & McAlister.

might have answered the summons, according to the temper of the rebels.

The revolutionists gained their point, however. The dominion settled land upon them. THE RIEL REBELLION and there was peace. The scene of the present trouble is the Saskatchewan country-the cause the same. The district runs almost 1,000 miles along the river of the same name. The halfbreeds' lands are divided into long, narrow strips, extending an immense distance back from the Saskatchewan. This is to give each settler a river frontage, a privilege which they are ready to fight for. There are about 34,000 Indians scattered through the northwest, whom Riel hoped to win over to refuse to do; hence the revolt. The first fight was at Duck Lake, 19 miles east of Carlton. It was with the mounted policemen and loyal citizens. Soldiers were forwarded by the Canadian Pacific railway to Qu'Appelle. At that point they left the railway and marched overland northwest. Another body of troops under Gen. Middle ton left the railway at Swift Current and took the westerly route north. From Qu'Appelle to Prince Albert the distance is 250 EDWARD MACQUEEN.

The map herewith of that portion of British America north of Montana, Dakota and Minnesota shows the Saskatchewan country in the northwest corner. From the Canadian Pacific railway at Swift Current a trail is mdicated by a dotted line to Prince Albert, This is the route the Canadian troops are expected to take, the distance being about 250, miles. Battleford, Carlton and Prince Albert are situated on the north Saskatchewan river, and here the half-breeds have settled, their farms extending in long usrrow strips back from the river on both sides, the houses being in a line along the river bank. The government has resurveyed the country, laying it out into sections one quarter of a mile square, and insist on the half-breeds giving up their old homes and narrow strips of land for square unim-proved sections, this Riel and his followers

A Plucky Woman.

Our readers will be pleased to see a ploture of Miss Ada C. Sweet, the Chicago pension agent who claims her right, under the civil service law, to hold her office until the term regularly expires. She is a good looking young woman. Anybody can see that with half an eye. She is a tall, slender blonde, erect and graceful. She has re!-brown hair, of the fashionable tinge, and a clear blue eye. She is a refined intellectual woman, who puts on no airs because she is a woman and a pension agent. She gets the largest pay of any woman in official life in the United States. Her salary is $4,000. She dresses handsomely and fashionably, but plainly. It is agreeable to record that there is no nonsense about her. Her office is one of the best administered agencies in the country. Miss Sweet has a striking, clear cut face and the firm, quiet air of one who understands herself and her business. She has always said that she asked no odds for herself as a woman, but stood on her record as an official. If the management of her agency did not compare, man for man, with that of any other agency in the country, then she would step down and out any day. This clear-headed, plucky woman has beld her place 11 years. The Chicago pension office does the heaviest business of any in the country outside of New York and Philadelphia.

She is a daughter of Gen. B. J. Sweet, a gallant officer during the war. His daughter's appointment to her high position was an accident, apparently, and yet it came about exactly in consequence of her splendid ability to fill the post. During her father's administration of the office this girl did not spend her time eating candy and doing up her hair in curl papers. Not she. While other girls lay abad mornings and read novels, and made crazy quilts, Miss Sweet was up bright and early and worked all day in her father's office. She kept regular hours, like a man who meant business. She never once said that she wanted to work "when I feel like it." She never stayed away from her desk because she had a headache, or cried when she got a scolding. In regularity, clear-headedness and business-like behavior she was a little bit better than the best man of them all. Consequently the force of male clerks about her never said they didn't like to work in the same office with a pesky woman, because she made so much bother. Miss Sweet was not that kind of a workin

There was a large family of children, her brothers and sisters. Her father taught her all the routine of his business. She was at length promoted to be his chief cherk. He was afterwards appointed deputy pension of those who had not grown rich in office, and his large family was left unprovided for. What was to become of them? At this point Gen. Grant, then president, appointed the old soldier's daughter to the Chicago agency. This was April 16, 1874. She was then 25 years old. The brave girl pension agent has held her office ever since, through the administrations of Hayes and Arthur. Gen. John A. Logan has been her firm friend throughout. Her mother, an invalid, was struck by a passing railway train in Chicago some years ago, and killed. Miss Sweet has therefore been father and mother both to her young brothers and sisters. She has supported and educated them with the money she received as pension agent.

The correspondence in which she was asked to resign and refuses is rather racy reading.

REQUEST FOR RESIGNATION. "WASHINGTON, April 4.-Will you send to this office your resignation to take effect on June 30. You will readily appreciate the fact, which I gladly state, that there is no reason personal to yourself or to your management of your office which induces this request. I am, very respectably yours, "JOHN C. BLACK, Commissioner." Miss Sweet at once telegraphed back a dispatch, not to Commissioner Black, but management of my office, induces the request My commission from the president runs for four years, my present term not ending until April 16, 1886. I have performed all the du ties of my office with an eye single to the interests confided to my charge. Conscious of this, I do not wish to resign, and I know of no reason why I should take action that might seem to be voluntary, when in reality i would be taken under protest. Very respect fully, your obedient servant,

"ADA C. SWEET, . "United States Pension Agent." A newspaper wit sums up the spirit of the matter in some doggerel that is not bad: My dearest Miss Sweet,

I think it but meet You should forward me your resignation; So please don't delay, Let it come right away, And relieve me, for my situation

Is indeed very sad, With friends swearing mad.

My dear Mr. Black, I fear there's a crack In the thing called a head on your shoulder Sc strange you appeal, I cannot but feel

You've been butting the same 'gainst boulder. I really don't see

How we can agree, So diverse are your interests and mine; But this I will say, 'Twill be a long day Before I'll be coaxed to resign.

MRS. THOMAS A. HENDRICKS. Mrs. Hendricks, the wife of the vice president, is at present an interesting figure in Washington society. Though of rather small stature, she has a commanding will, it is said, which is the principal guide of her husband through the mazes of politics. She is decidedly a woman of affairs, watching closely the course of events, on which she does not hesitate to express in conversation her individual opinion with a tact and grace. of which she is unmistakably mistress. She was Miss Eliza C. Morgan before she married Mr. Hendricks in 1845. Her grand father, Dr. Stephen Wood, was one of the earliest settlers of Hamilton county, Ohio Mr. and Mrs. Hendricks have had but one child, a son, who died when three years old She has for many years devoted much of her time to charitable matters, being president of the board of trustees of the Indiana Insti tution for the reformation of girls for four years, and while her husband was governor

Prysident of the French Council.

EUGENE HENRI BRISSON. The changes of ministry in France occur so often that the formation of a ministry with M. Brisson as president would scarcely at tract attention on this side of the water, only that it marks the defeat of Jules Ferry and the "jingo" foreign policy which he instituted. The French people are at heart conservativeinclined to mind their own business. The war with China was distasteful to them, but as long as their troops were successful they permitted it. When the first news of reverses came they repudiated the whole foreign polic and consequently the Ferry ministry was ejected.

M. Brissen is just 50 years of age. father was a pronounced Republican, and the con, even as a youth in the law school, put his Republican sentiments on record in the form of a Republican paper which he started, called L'Avenir. This at a time when it was dangerous to even hint at a Republican form of government shows the courageous spirit of Brisson. When 24 a throat trouble prevented him from court pleading, so he adopted journalism. In 1871 he entered the French as embly as a delegate and in 1881 succeeded Gambetta as president of the chamber of deputies. M. Grevy's seven years term as president of France ex pirce in January next and it was expected Brisson would be one of the candidates to succeed him. Though it now depends altogether on how he manages his present po sition. Like our own president, he keeps his own council. And this reticence of disposition is in his favor, as his opinions command profound respect when he does ax

ST. MARTIN,

Sire of Emma Manley, Bob Pate, Florentine, Doubt &c., &c., will make the season of 1885 at my stables near Stanford, Ky.,

AT TWENTY DOLLARS.

St. Martin is one of the most distinguished sons of Imp Phaeton, winning good races over good horses at all distances, and a few of his colts on the turf in 1884 were all seen at the front. His son, Doubt, was one of the best 2-year-olds of the year. St. Martin is the highest type of a thoroughbred horse, standing over 16½ hands high, spleudidly proportioned, kind as a lamb and combines the best blood of England and America. By Imp. Phaeton, first dam Tokay, by Imp. Yorkshire; second dam Miss Martin, by Garrison's Zinganee, (son of Sir Archy); third dam Gabriella by Sir Archy; fourth dam Calypso, by Belair; fifth dam (dam of Contention) by Imp. Dare Devil; sixth dam Symes' Wildair; seventh dam Picadills, by Batt & Macklin's Feranaught; eighth dam Godolphin; ninth dam by Imp. Hobinob; teath dam by Imp. Jolly Ranger; eleventh dam by Imp. Valiant; twelfth dam by Tryall. Thus it is seen that his blood is enriched from the same fountain that was Lexington, the great race horse and greatest of sires, and Giencoe, Yorkshir- and Phaeton renowned in the turf histories. I have put his services at the low figures to oblige my friends and neighbors and to justify broeders at a distance in sending to him, and would take a few good mares on the shares. The fact that President Cleveland is a backelor makes Mrs. Hendricks in politico social life the "first lady in the land." There is some question among theorists whether in a republic there can be such a position a that of "first lady." There is no question and all about it, however, in Washington society Next to the president's wife, the vice-president have had no wives. Mrs. Hendricks with the such a position.
